The following scale will be used to determine an applicant's total possible points.

Poor

Few, if any, elements are addressed. Documentation and required information are deficient or omitted. Weaknesses identified will likely have substantial effect on the applicant's proposed project.

Fair

Some elements are addressed, and those addressed do not contain necessary detail and/or support. Some documentation and required information are missing or deficient. Weaknesses identified likely have significant effect on the applicant's proposed project.

Satisfactory

Elements are addressed, although some do not contain necessary detail and/or support. Most documentation and required information are present and acceptable. Weaknesses identified will likely have moderate effect on the applicant's proposed project.

Very Good

Elements are clearly addressed with necessary detail and adequate support. Most documentation and required information are specific and sufficient. Weaknesses identified will likely have minor effect on the applicant's proposed project.

Excellent

All elements are clearly addressed, well-conceived, thoroughly developed, and well supported.

Documentation and required information are specific and comprehensive. Weaknesses identified will likely have no effect on the applicant's proposed project.
